Prayer for the Beatification of the Servant of God Frank Duff

God our Father, You inspired your servant Frank Duff with a profound insight into the mystery of Your Church, the Body of Christ, and of the place of Mary the Mother of Jesus in this mystery. In his immense desire to share this insight with others and in filial dependence on Mary he formed her Legion to be a sign of her maternal love for the world and a means of enlisting all her children in the Church's evangelizing work.

We thank you Father for the graces conferred on him and for the benefits accruing to the Church from his courageous and shining faith. With confidence we beg You that through his intercession you grant the petition we lay before You..... We ask too that if it be in accordance with Your will, the holiness of his life may be acknowledged by the Church for the glory of your Name, through Christ Our Lord, Amen.

All Legion Councils, praesidia and individual legionaries are encouraged to actively promote the Cause of the Servant of God, Frank Duff, through the widespread dissemination of the Frank Duff prayer leaflets, through the organizing of Frank Duff prayer groups and the holding of Masses to commemorate his life. This prayer can be obtained from the Legion of Mary website www.legion-of-mary.ie

CONCILIUM LEGIONIS MARIAE

De Monfort House Morning Star Avenue
Brunswick Street
Dublin 7, Ireland

The Primacy of Charity in the Legion.

In November the Church celebrates the Feast of all the Saints and this reminds us once more of our own call to be saints and there is absolutely no one who is not called to be a saint. Frank Duff puts it very succinctly: 'Every person that is born is called to be a saint.' The feast also reminds us that at the deepest level we are never alone in this life. Pope Benedict expressed this truth movingly in his homily during the Mass for the inauguration of his Petrine Ministry: 'Surrounded, led and guided by the friends of God, I do not have to carry alone what, in truth, I could not carry alone. All the saints of God are there to protect me, to sustain me and to carry me.' Each one of us can truly say the same thing. I think that when the inner life of Frank Duff is more fully examined there will have to be a chapter on the extraordinary way he lived out the dogma of the Communion of Saints. It is also an indispensable part of his legacy to the Legion.

Also in November, we commemorate all the faithful departed or as we say: 'All Souls Day' or the 'Souls in Purgatory.' These members of the Mystical Body of Christ can no longer do anything for themselves but they can do a lot for us and we can do a lot for them. We can hasten their entrance into heaven. It is surely a wonderful apostolate to pray frequently for all the souls in Purgatory and especially our fellow-legionaries who may still need the support of our prayer and intercession. The suffrages prescribed in the Handbook for our departed legionaries express an important tradition of the Legion and we should faithfully carry them out as a sign of the authenticity of our love for our fellow legionaries and perhaps also for the more pragmatic reason that we may need these prayers when our turn comes around.

Now, we are organically united with the saints in heaven and the souls in purgatory because we are all members of the one Body of Christ. Our bonding with them is much deeper than any biological bonding; it is our life together in Christ, in the mystery of the Trinity. What the saints in heaven and the souls in Purgatory have in common is that in varying degrees they all practised what we call the primacy of charity: they tried to love God above everything else and their neighbours to the best of their abilities. And that is the goal of the Legion too. It seeks to live the primacy of charity at all times, in all places, and in all circumstances, in good times and in difficult times. Putting it bluntly, the primacy of charity must be absolute in the heart of every legionary. The Handbook discusses the primacy of charity in the Legion in many places but in chapter 41, the last chapter of the Handbook, it examines it explicitly and at length. The title is: 'The Greatest of these is Love.' (1 Cor. 13:13)

Let me quote one paragraph that in some ways is the most important one in the whole Handbook: 'Within its own ranks there should be an unaffected simplicity and sincere mutual charity among the members, all distinctions being non-existent. If love is due to those whom the legionary serves, it is no

Four residents supervise the Shed at certain times and one resident provides a popular Spanish lesson twice weekly. The Shed also provides an outlet for former residents and several of those have acquired employment through the assistance of the legionaries in the Shed.

Cape Verde Regia: One praesidium reports holding its meeting at 7.30 a.m. Regia correspondents visited their councils in several islands. The Regia discussed the challenges of evangelising youth and it was stressed that great care should be taken of junior praesidia, and that the Legion, in keeping with the spirit of founder Frank Duff should be presented as a joyful organisation.

ANGOLA

Luanda Senatus: The Senatus accepted the advice not to take away most of the praesidia directly attached to the Senatus to form a new Curia. Items mentioned in Minutes included a meeting with auxiliary members, a meeting with all the officers of the higher councils in Luanda and a Retreat for officers of these councils. The 97th Anniversary of the Legion was celebrated in September. Visits were made to some distant councils. An Annual Report of the Senatus showed works undertaken by praesidia directly attached included home, hospital and prison visitation, and visits to the sick and elderly in their homes; they also teach catechism.

Benguela Senatus: A new Bishop was appointed for the Diocese of Benguela. He is to meet and celebrate Mass with legionaries from the various cities in the less due to its fellow members. The spirit of distinction is evidence of the absence of the first qualification for membership, which is the spirit of love. The whole idea and spirit of the Legion is one of intense charity and sympathy, which before radiating its warmth outside must first of all burn brightly and strongly on the domestic hearth of the Legion itself: 'By this will everyone know that you are my disciples, if you have love for one another.' This is just another way of saying that a legionary must first be a Christian. A Christian is someone who loves, not just his friends, or people he gets on with, but the disagreeable and even his enemies. To adapt a saying of St. John of the Cross, in the evening of life or in the last analysis, the Legion will be judged on its efforts to give primacy to charity among its members and to everyone else it contacts.

I would be doing an injustice to the Handbook and its consideration of the primacy of charity in the Legion if I did not stress the Marian motivation behind it. So let me give one quote: 'Mary was so utterly full of charity that she was found worthy to conceive and bring into the world him who is charity itself. The Legion of Mary, depending for its very life on devotedness to her and imitation of her, must necessarily be distinguished by this self-same quality of intense charity. It must be full of charity; then only will it bring charity into the world.'
